How it works

Chiropodists are Primary Care Providers. You do not need to have a referral, and you do not need to see a doctor or nurse practitioner at WECHC to access these services. The Chiropodist sees people of all ages and can help prevent future foot problems by keeping feet healthy.

To get an appointment with the Chiropodist at WECHC, you will need to fill out an application form. You can access this form on our website, or from reception staff at the Health Centre.

Next, you will be contacted to book an appointment. A first visit consists of an assessment and medical history. Based on these, you may be scheduled for a follow-up appointment, prescribed treatment, or referred to another service in the surrounding area. WECHC's Chiropodist cares for urgent or persistent health related problems; these services do not include simple nail care or grooming.

Assessments and most treatments are free, but items like orthotics and cast boots are billed at cost.

Why is foot health important?

Foot care is a life-long commitment. Foot disorders, infections and injuries can limit your mobility and have been linked to other health issues like lower backache, headaches, or a misaligned spine. Foot problems may also indicate more serious medical conditions like arthritis, diabetes, and nerve or circulatory disorders.

As most people are not born with foot problems, neglect and a lack of awareness of proper care – including proper footwear – are what bring on most problems. Some of the most common issues include corns or calluses, warts, blisters, athlete's foot and fissures.
